Real Barn Dance Is Staged at Theatre

DECORATION IN NOVEL STYLE MAKES GATHERING MORE ATTRACTIVE

Possibly the most novel affair ever pulled off in town was staged at the theatre on Monday evening when a so-called "barn" dance was made into the real thing as far as possible by the unusual decorations.

The hall was fitted up entirely as the interior of a barn with the usual accompanying straw, poultry, etc., and even the walls had been transformed into imitation straw siding; the whole representing days of hard work in preparation.

Although the crowd was not as large as could have been desired, those present all had a real good time in their "real farm" costumes, and danced away the hours till early morn.

During the proceedings a "country store" dispensed prize packets of useful goods to lucky ticket holders, and prizes for outstanding costumes went to Mr. and Mrs. Greer, Mrs. Cameron and Mr. Jack Telford.

Supper was served at midnight, and before dispersing the crowd were unanimous in their praises of so novel and enjoyable an affair.

Well-known Farmer Is Bereaved of Wife

MRS. A. F. KOHL LAID TO REST AFTER LONG ILLNESS

It is our sad duty this week to chronicle the passing away of Mrs. A. F. Kohl, who died on Thursday last after a prolonged illness.

The deceased lady was born in Vermont, U.S., in 1877 and thus had reached the age of 57 years. After living for some years in New York City, she came to Wainwright with her family some 22 years ago, and has resided ever since on the farm in this district.

She was always an active worker, especially in the early pioneering days of the community, and was beloved and held in high esteem by all with whom she came in contact throughout the whole district.

She is survived by her husband and one daughter, Mrs. G. B. McNern, also of Wainwright, to whom the sympathies of a large circle of friends and acquaintances are extended.

The funeral services which were in the hands of McLeod's parlors were conducted in the United Church on Saturday afternoon, the pastor, Rev. T. E. Armstrong, officiating. Interment was at Wainwright cemetery.

The pallbearers were Messrs J. McClennon, C. McClennon, T. Sheridan, W. Rathwell, A. Muddle, and W. Woodward.

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. A. F. Kohl and daughter (Mrs. G. B. McNern) wish to thank and express their utmost appreciation to their many friends for the helpful sympathy shown and assistance rendered in the sad loss of a loving wife and mother.

A. F. KOHL
MRS. G. B. MCNERN

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Flora, beloved wife of P. D. Laird, who passed away February, 22, 1933.

Odd Fellows Honor Founder Anniversary

On Monday evening after their usual meeting, the members of Wainwright Lodge No. 45, were joined by their sister members and a number of friends to celebrate the anniversary of the birth of the founder of the Order (Thomas Wilkey).

Cards and contests nicely filled out an enjoyable time, and after the ladies had served a delicious supper to all present, a little dance nicely rounded out a very pleasant evening for a large number.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE HOLD REGULAR MONTHLY MEETING

The usual monthly meeting of the members of the local W. I. was held at the home of Mrs. J. W. Stuart, with twelve members and three visitors present.

After the business of the meeting had been concluded, a contest was entered into with keen interest, the prize for this going to Mrs. Wright.

Lunch was served by the joint hostesses, Mrs. Stuart and Mrs. Wright, and the meeting adjourned to take place at the home of Mrs. T. Blason on March 8th.

The resignation of poultry peddlers under the Canadian National Live Stock Records Board, and the system under which they operate through the Canadian National Poultry Record Association, constitutes one of the most advanced national breeding policies ever undertaken in any country.

Mr. Lucas was supported by two U. F. A. colleagues, Mr. Spencer and Mr. Irvine, while Mr. Rhodes stated the government's position. The financial Minister said he "approached" the subject with much humility in view of the statement of an eminent professor in the United States that there are only sixteen persons in the world who know anything of finance, and in the list mentioned by the economist not one Canadian had been included. He was glad, however, that this had not deterred his friends in that corner from discussing this very large subject. The Prime Minister pointed out that as the regulation involved the very matters to be discussed in the revision of the Bank Act and the establishment of a central bank, further discussion at this time might possibly infringe the rule that any subject can be debated only under one resolution in any one session.

WAINWRIGHT JUNIORS WIN FROM IRMA

Federal Parliament in Session

(Special To The Star)

Investigations are no new thing in sessional activities but this season promises to make history in this regard. Whether or not the speech made by Hon. B. H. Stevens in Toronto recently, condemning certain business methods as practiced by department and chain stores, was designed to bring the matter before the public in a spectacular way it succeeded in doing just that, and now practically everybody and everything is going to be investigated.

The report of the Minister sponsored a resolution providing for the appointment of a committee of eleven members, from all groups in the House, to delve into the causes for the spread in prices between the producer and the consumer. There was complete unanimity of opinion in the House as to the need of such enquiry, but quite a discussion developed as to the powers of the committee and the scope of the probe. Members from the east and west coasts were anxious that the fishing industry should not be overlooked, British Columbia lumbering as well, while the prairie members put in a similar claim for live stock and gasoline. Labor members were concerned with working conditions, hours and pay of factory workers, and a number stressed the over-capitalization (on paper) of big companies by banks, stock brokers and trust companies. The Prime Minister assured the House that it was the intention of the government "to provide a committee with power to investigate all the matters involved in the spread between the price paid to the producer and the cost to the consumer." Mr. Bennett said the main purpose of the inquiry was to uncover and prevent unethical and detrimental methods of business which might hinder the return of prosperity. He was quite aware of the magnitude of the task but the committee might appoint an investigator to gather information on the different points, which would conserve the time of the committee in hearing evidence. The government was assured of the fullest co-operation of all groups in the opposition, and was congratulated by some independent members on its initiative in instituting such an investigation. This matter promises to rival in interest the important financial and currency issues involved in the revision of the Bank Act and the establishment of a central bank.

In this connection a brief but interesting debate took place on a resolution introduced by Mr. Lucas, (U.P.A., Camrose) asking the government to give immediate consideration to the re-assessment, by the state of the issue and control of currency, which has now been acquired by private interests for private profit. Mr. Lucas took the stand that this is the fundamental cause of the prevailing unemployment and distress.

The member for Camrose said he knew there was a "tendency for the orthodox party man as well as the orthodox financier, whether in or out of this House, to look with contempt or anything which emanated from this corner of the House, especially in regard to the issue of the revision of the Bank Act and the establishment of a central bank."

Mr. Lucas was supported by two U. F. A. colleagues, Mr. Spencer and Mr. Irvine, while Mr. Rhodes stated the government's position. The financial Minister said he "approached" the subject with much humility in view of the statement of an eminent professor in the United States that there are only sixteen persons in the world who know anything of finance, and in the list mentioned by the economist not one Canadian had been included. He was glad, however, that this had not deterred his friends in that corner from discussing this very large subject. The Prime Minister pointed out that as the regulation involved the very matters to be discussed in the revision of the Bank Act and the establishment of a central bank, further discussion at this time might possibly infringe the rule that any subject can be debated only under one resolution in any one session.

Later on Mr. Lucas withdrew his resolution.

The speech from the throne has had one more round, in which the usual line of attack and defence was (continued on page two)

Report is Published C. of E. Social Service

"Unto One of The Least of These"

Is the title of the eighteenth annual report of the Council for Social Service of the Church of England in Canada, which has just been issued and is available for distribution.

The colour of the cover is a bright daffodil, yellow, suggestive of spring-time hope and confidence in the future which is fully justified by the contents within.

As a frontispiece the report carries an excellent portrait of the late Mr. G. B. Woods, for many years the devoted Hon. Treasurer of the Council, who passed away on October 27, 1932. There are portraits of the five Anglican chaplains at Canadian penitentiaries, and cuts showing scenes in Unemployment Relief Camps, and two contrasting views of normal and abnormal conditions in one of the afflicted Western areas.

The report closes with the perusal of the General Secretary, Canon Vernon; the report of the Executive Committee dealt with at the annual meeting; and the financial report of the Hon. Treasurer, the late Mr. G. B. Woods. It deals with work done for relief of the sufferers in the dried out areas of the Middle West; Unemployment Relief; the Protection of Girl Life; Child and Family Welfare; Deportations; Empire Settlement; Summer Schools; Welfare work at the Council's office; the Council of the Churches on Social Migration; the Joint Committee on the Evangelization of Canadian Life; Social Work Conferences; the Church Army; the Girls' Friendly Society; The Mothers' Union; the Anglican Young Peoples' Association; and other interesting subjects.

The report closes with a note of optimism. To quote: "The Council's look is ever forward to the New Day in which social obligations will more fully be recognised, and social justice for all made an outstanding factor in the life of the nation and the church."

A copy of this report will be sent on application to the office of the Council for Social Service, 604 Jarvis Street, Toronto 5, Ontario.

Side-splitting Comedy Is Offering This Week

"THE PASSIONATE PLUMBER" FOR THE ELITE THIS WEEK

The Passionate Plumber, Elite Theatre, presentation this week, commencing Thursday. Here is a comedy program you will remember for a long time. It is chiefly the nose of Blanche Durant, and his antics and monomaniacs which will keep you in an uproar during the entire showing of this feature, which co-stars Buster Keaton and Polly Moran. A good part of the Keaton effort, of course, is registered through the frame of the comedian, Polly Moran, with plenty of handkerchiefs in a manner which will draw many hearty laughs. Buster, the plumber, becomes involved in a heavy romance when Irene Purcell, an American girl living in Paris, asks the plumber to act as her lover to prevent her from seeing the man she thinks she loves. Polly is her maid, Durant her chauffeur. The man in the case is Gilbert Roland and the triangle has been excitedly handled. Mona Maris as the temperamental Spanish girl who demonstrates her love by throwing everything handy, her specialty, however, appears to be dishes. Keaton with the ready and excited assistance of Durant, succeeds in proving in a real funny sequence that Roland is not all that he might be from a standpoint of fidelity. The entire program is a scream, which should be enjoyed by all.

SOUND FINANCING

The recent annual meeting of the ratepayers proved the Town to be on a good sound foundation in money matters, and thanks are due the Mayor and Council for their earnestness and sincerity in handling the Town's affairs during the past twelve months.

When bank borrowings can be eliminated, the necessary requisition for the school be met in full, debt service payments met upon demand, and expenses of running the Town kept within collections from the taxes in times like these, we maintain that it is surely a sign of good sound management; and whether we like it or not, we should at least be big enough to express our gratitude and appreciation for the untiring services rendered by our elected officials on the several bodies for the good of all and sundry.

"I'M FEELIN' FINE"

There ain't no use in kickin' friend,
When things don't come your way;
It does no good to holler round,
And grumble night an' day.
The thing to do is curb your grief,
Cut out your little whine,
And when they ask you how you are,
Just say "I'm feelin' fine."

There ain't no man alive but what
Is looked to get his slap;
There ain't no man that walks but what
From trouble gets his rap.
Go mingle with the bunch old boy,
Where all the bright lights shine,
And when they ask you how you are,
Just say "I'm feelin' fine."

Your heart may just be bustin' with
Some real or fancied woe,
But when you smile the other folks
Ain't really apt to know.
The old world laughs at heartaches,
friend,
Be they your own or mine,
So when they ask you how you are,
Just say "I'm feelin' fine."

WEIGHING WHAT CANNOT BE WEIGHED

By Arthur B. Rhinow
Somebody had absentmindedly laid a cook book on the little scales in the office of the Old Folks' Home, and I looked to see how much it weighed.
Not even a pound; that is, on the scales that measure material weight.
There are other ways of weight, weighing a book, however, weighing it according to its influence upon humanity. The good it has done.
And on those scales a cook book weighs far more than a pound. A sane cuisine adds immensely to the joy of life, even as bad cooking has made many misers, Nielsen, we are told, lost a decisive battle because he had eaten unripe fruit the evening before. A well cooked meal might have turned the current of history into a different channel.

Ponder the imponderable. David,
the shepherd lad, is more important than the giant Goliath; more power has issued from the silence of meditation than from the big noises; and one act of true love is worth more than all the glame in the world.

A book ought not to be judged, but by its education and its educational value. The classics are often sold in cheap editions, but they have enriched millions. And a Bible may be purchased for very little, but how much it weighs.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Bishop are visiting

We are glad to report that Miss Margaret Krimball is back at school after a painful two weeks with a sprained ankle.

CONTINUATION OF

followed, without advancing the business of the country. If one had the time to go back over the debates on the annual speech from the throne since the beginning of the century, they would be found to run true to form during all these years. On this occasion party members on both sides of the House took the opportunity of a few pot-shots at the C.C.F.

In reply to questions by Mr. Luchkovitch (U.F.A., Vegreville) the following information was given by the Minister of Labour.

Immigration, 1933, British, 2,304; United States, 8,500; Northern Europeans, 670; other nationalities, 2,908; Total 14,382.

Deportations 1933, British, including dependants and dependencies, 2,684; United States 291; other countries, 1,413; Total 4,388.

A. A. Heaps (Labor, Winnipeg N.) introduced a resolution "that the government should take into immediate consideration the necessity of reducing the hours of labor of those engaged in industry, and also increase the purchasing power of the masses of our people in order that they may absorb the goods produced, thereby creating a more equitable distribution of our wealth production."

Mr. Heaps considers that "in increased opportunities to consume the goods produced lies the crux of the present economic situation." He said he was glad to see that the Minister of Finance, while in London, had expressed the opinion that instead of cutting down on when production the fact alone should try to increase consumption, with which sentiments he quite agreed. The representative of Labor made his usual well-reasoned, moderate speech, and was supported by Mr. MacInnis (Labor, Vancouver South). Several members in all parts of the House took part in this discussion, and Hon. Mr. Guthrie, speaking for the Minister of Labor, not present, said the resolution was acceptable to the government, as they had in fact been considering the subject for some time. The most interesting part of the debate was the fact that hours of labor were under the jurisdiction of the provinces "and," said Mr. Guthrie, "my experience in regard to interprovincial conferences has been that the dominion and provinces have never yet been able to agree unanimously on a single important proposal had before a conference for agreement."

Mr. Heaps' resolution passed the House without division.

For the third year in succession the Co-operative Commonwealth resolution was introduced by the leader of the new group, Mr. Woodsworth, and an interesting feature of the occasion this session, was the presence and attention of many party members of both sides who apparently have considered the matter not worthy of notice in former years. Mr. Woodsworth presented the manifesto as formulated at the Regina convention last July, and explained in detail the aims and objects of the new movement, which he disclaims as a "party" in the old sense of the word. "It is a federation of farmer, labor and socialist organizations financed by its own members," said Mr. Woodsworth, "and seeking to achieve its ends solely by constitutional methods. We consider that both the old parties in Canada are the instruments of capitalistic interests and cannot serve as agents of social reconstruction. I am convinced that we may develop in Canada a distinctive type of socialism."

The leader of the C.C.F. pointed out that "national planning" as such was no longer confined to Russia. It is being tried out by the United States, and even the Conservatives in Great Britain are beginning to talk planning. Mr. Woodsworth was not accorded the courtesy of an extension of his forty minutes, which is sometimes done, the Mr. Spaker cutting him off almost in the middle of a sentence, and when he resumed his seat, ridicule, accusations and misrepresentations were directed at the new party and its leaders, and "a good time was had by all"—slightly reminiscent of a tea-party with a new scandal! But was it possible there was a little air of latent panic about it? Abuse of the C.C.F. is the only matter upon which Conservative and Liberal members applaud each other.

There are quite a number of absentees through illness, the most conspicuous being Miss MacPhail, as the only woman member. Miss MacPhail has not yet recovered sufficiently from a serious illness to take her place in the House.

The Moyerton orchestra supplied a most snappy music for the evening.

It is our duty to report the death of baby Bencia. The remains were interred in the Rodeo cemetery.

The sympathy of the district is extended to the Bencia family in their deep sorrow.

The children of the district are in their seventh heaven with Ice to the right of them, Ice to the left of them, Ice in front of them, so they slip and slide and "boom" and glance.

The Fact Finders

By Ed. Kressy

Origin of Words and Phrases

CALLING HIM A "PIKER"
 "Piker" is one of the best known words in our language for a penniless person, a "lightwad," one who refuses or begrudges paying his share. And many people who have a particular antipathy for this gentry will be pleased to learn that the piker was originally a thief.

From the old "pikker" meaning "one who picks or plucks off; one who steals, especially small things that may be readily picked up," the form "piker" has been known since the thirteenth century, first for a robber or thief, and later for a petty pilferer. Under date of 1440 we find it defined thus by Geoffrey, the Grammarian:

"Fykare, lylie theves." A subsequent spelling was "pikar."

The connection in meaning between "little thief" and "piker" is, of course easily comprehensible.

THAT WORD "LAYMAN"
 Today we use this word to indicate that one is not of some particular profession or class of experts, as "Of course as a layman talking to a physician I must see presumptuous." We use it popularly with reference to all professions. But it was used exclusively with reference to the clergy or rather those who were not of the clergy, that the word came into our language.

We have "layman" from the old French "lai" meaning "secular, belonging to the laity, those not of the church." And that was the significance of the original, Middle-English word "layman." Ultimately the French "lai" goes back to the Greek which means "of the people."

The amount of branded beef sold in all Canada during the month of December last was 2,347,595 pounds.

"THE CURE IS WORSE THAN THE DISEASE"

"The cure is worse than the disease," we say when we mean that the remedy for any evil is almost too costly to be worthwhile, that is costly in unpleasantness not dissimilar from the evil which it is supposed to cure. It is of course an outgrowth of the literal reference to medical treatment which is even more unpleasant and difficult to bear than the illness which it is intended to cure.

The original form of this saying is: "There are some remedies worse than the disease," and it is one of the Maxims, number 301, of Publilius Syrus, the Roman writer of Mimes, whose work dated about 42 B.C.

THE WORD "INCULCATE"
 "We must inculcate in our children first of all the idea of consideration for others," said a leading educator. Surely he did not mean to tread upon those children or to grind something into them with his heel. But that is the literal meaning of the word.

From the Latin "inculcare," the word "inculcate" means really "to tread on." This is the combination of "in" plus "culcare" which means to tread. It goes back to "calc," which is "heel."

Once this colorful etymology of the word has been revealed to us, it is not difficult to see how "to tread on" should be degress have acquired the figurative use of "to teach by repeated admonition," "to impress upon."

CANADIAN CHEESE PROBLEMS

The problems facing the cheese industry in Ontario today are many, says the Economic Annalist, issued quarterly by the Agricultural Economics Branch, Dominion Department of Agriculture. Perhaps, the most important one affecting production costs is declining volume of business. In 1934 the first cheese factory is reported to have been established in Oxford County, Ontario. From then on a rapid development took place in the industry until early in this century. Since 1900—40 period there has been a gradual decline in production of cheese in Ontario (and in fact throughout the whole Dominion.) In 1931, Ontario had 714 factories in which were produced slightly over 84 million pounds of cheese. This figure represents a decrease of 36.4 per cent as compared to a production of nearly 132 million pounds in the year 1900.

With the development of large urban centres and increased demand for milk, fluid consumption, and for use in the manufacture of other

Experimental Farms News

DOES MANURE KILL WEEDS

Farmers visiting the Dominion Experimental Station, Scott, last summer displayed keen interest in an experiment designed to test the effect of rotting manure in the germination of certain weed seeds. Enough information is now available to issue a preliminary statement on this project.

Seven weed seeds, (Blue Burr, Lamb's Quarters, Quack Grass, Russian Pigweed, Stinkweed, Tansy Mustard and Wild Oats), placed separately in fresh horse and cow manure, as received from the barn, inside folded fine screening of monel metal produced no germination at the end of one month.

Twenty-five seeds in lots of one hundred each were prepared in quadruplicate and placed in a gradually increasing pile of manure. The weed seeds were, Blue Burr, Blue Burr, Canada Thistle, Cow Cockle, Common False Flax, False Ragweed, Hare's Ear Mustard, Lamb's Quarters, Night Flowering Catch Fly, Field Pepper Grass, Purslane, Quack Grass, Red Root Pigweed, Russian Thistle, Shepherd's Purse, Perennial Sow Thistle, Stinkweed, Sweet Clover, Green Tansy Mustard, Wild Buckwheat, Wild Oats, Wormweed and Tumbling Mustard. When samples of each were removed and tested at the end of three and six months, not a single seed germinated.

Another group of fourteen weed seeds were wrapped in monel metal and were placed in a corner of the manure pile which was watered every three or four days. At the end of one month not a single seed germinated. Another group of weed seeds were then wrapped in cardboard or thin wooden containers. Again no weed seeds germinated at the end of one month. This indicated that slight decomposition of the monel metal noted where it was used in another phase of this project was not responsible for destroying germination.

It is evident that temperatures alone destroyed the germination power of weed seeds in rotting manure as the thermograph never gave a reading below 100 degrees F. and went as high as one hundred and sixty degrees.

GROW YOUR OWN GRASS AND CLOVER SEED

One reason why forage crops have not been grown more extensively is the fact that seeds require a considerable outlay of cash at the time of the year when it is none too plentiful. Those who can buy their grass and clover seed may often be justified in doing so because of the inconvenience involved in handling a small acreage. Seed growing in Western Canada, however, is not difficult and fortunately the kind of crops in common use can all be harvested and threshed with ordinary farm machinery. Cleaning sometimes, is not so easy but usually this can be accomplished with the flailing mill by adding a few extra sieves.

Seed of western rye grass, brome grass, crested wheat, grass and sweet clover can all be grown successfully on the average farm. Yields vary considerably under different soil climatic conditions, but 300 pounds of seed per acre can easily be attained from any of these crops producing twice this amount are not infrequent. The correct rate of seeding is about 15 pounds per acre, so that 300 pounds will seed 20 acres.

For seed production the crop may be seeded solid or in cultivated rows, the seed apart. The choice of method will depend largely on the normal moisture supply for the district. In all of the prairie area at least, there is much to be said for row cultivation and in the drier parts this is almost essential.

If the crop is being sown in rows it is advisable not to use a nurse crop. Even when the crop has been drilled or broadcast, the absence of a nurse crop means stronger plants and higher seed yields. On the other hand it is often advisable to use a light seeding of grain in order to keep down the weeds.

All of the above crops can be cut with the grain binder. The sheaves are then stacked up until thoroughly dry and threshed with a grain threshing machine. Further information on separator adjustment and cleaning can be had from the Dominion Forage Crops Laboratory, University of Saskatchewan.

DOMINION EXPERIMENTAL STATION, LACOMBE, WEEKLY NEWS LETTER

A relic of the days when pigs didn't have such a lovely time as they do nowadays still remains in the eight sharp tusk-like teeth with which every pig is furnished at its birth. Since these sharp, black teeth are of no benefit to the pig under its modern living conditions; since there is always danger of these teeth lacerating the sow's teats in nursing, causing her to jump and possibly injure some of the pigs; and since the little pigs, thus armed, may bite or scratch one another in playing, allowing infection to start, these black teeth should be cut off immediately after birth, and before the pigs are placed with the sow to nurse. Care must be taken to not injure the gums. At the Dominion Experimental Station, Lacombe, this is done with sharp pliers and the tooth is cut about half way between the point and the gum, they should never be pulled or broken.

THE REIGN OF DAVID

What a romantic story of success! The simple shepherd lad, David, tending his sheep and playing his lute, receives a sudden summons home. Saul, the King, who is passionately fond of music, has sent out a call for a musician. The boy goes to court and by his modesty and quick intelligence becomes a favorite.

The blustering Goliath affords his courage a golden opportunity. In a single hour he wins the gratitude of the nation by killing Goliath with his sling in battle, and with it the jealous hatred of King Saul. At length Saul in battle defeat has his own guards run him through and David ascends the throne.

With firm hand and statesman-like vision he enforces order within the kingdom and respect without. So successful are his campaigns that he is able to establish a garrison in far off Damascus and levy tribute on the Syrians, while Hyram, the powerful king of Tyre, is glad to claim him as an ally and a friend. He is one of the greatest characters in all literature. You can see his sturdy body and strong but kindly face; you hear his tones and feel his presence, for there is no attempt to make him anything more than human. In fact his sin—the great blot on his kindly career—is set forth in complete detail. It is one of the famous illilove-stories and has been the theme of countless poems and plays. Walking one afternoon upon the roof of his palace David saw a beautiful woman in her bath. It was love at first sight. He sent immediately to inquire her name, and though it was told him that she was the wife of Uriah the Hittite, he took her into his harem. The act was more heinous by the fact that then Uriah was away fighting his king's battles at the front. After a period the girl, Bathsheba, brought David the uncomfortable news that she was with child. Then came the act of villainy. David conferred with Joab, his general, and arranged that Uriah should be sent into the very foremost rank at the next battle. Loysally the brave soldier fulfilled his orders and, as had been expected and hoped by the king, he was reported among the casualties. Bathsheba became the favorite of the palace and bore a famous son, Solomon, for whom she secured succession through her influence over David.

It is not a pretty story, and the prophet Nathan, a rugged old preacher who feared nothing, did not allow the king to forget his sin. Until his dying day David was conscience-stricken. We are quite sure that many of the Psalms which are attributed to him must have been written by others, but we know that he did write this one, a bitter cry of repentance: "According to the multitude of thy tender mercies blot out my transgressions."

Make Your Own Decorated Glassware

Every one admires the bright colors and intricate designs of imported decorated glassware, but it is so expensive that it becomes impractical for other than the most special gifts. Now, however, this need not deter you, because you can make your own decorated glassware. You can transform old glass jars, bottles, discarded china and cheap tumblers into gay and unusual bits of beauty. All that you need do is to wrap "Cellophane" or "Cello" ribbon around the article while it is thoroughly wet. It shrinks and adheres so that it practically becomes part of the glass.

If you use sheet "Cellophane" cut a long strip 3 inch wide and fold it lengthwise in half. Now dip the strip in water as you plan to use it, holding the ends so that it does not unfold. Withdraw the strip from the water and then wet the article to be decorated and, starting at the bottom of the article, draw the strip around it snugly, stretching it slightly and overlapping the rows. Each row should overlap the preceding one more than one-half its width. Vary the colors as desired.

dairy products, the production of cheese declined. Paralleling this development, came improved means of transportation, better roads, and more suitable means of handling milk, the net effect of this combination of circumstances being increased competition and declining volume of business for cheese factories and has been difficult for operators of these cheese factories to cope with these changed conditions and thus compete with the users of milk.

COLD LAKE ALBERTA

SECOND INSTALLMENT

Roddy Gordon, who has gone to New York to make his fortune, returns home to confront his parents and his sister Nancy with the fact that he has stolen fifteen thousand dollars from the bank where he works to help "the loveliest woman in the world" and will soon be found out unless he can return it. "But I love her," declares Roddy to his angry father. "I'd steal for her, I'd die for her." "A pretty story," shouts his father. "You've broken your mother's heart, you've disgraced your father and your sister—your young sister. Look at her, a girl in the morning of life—with a thief for a brother!"

(Now go on with the story)

"Roddy—my son, my son!" He recoiled violently. "My God, what was I going to do? I—I— he turned stupidly, blinding, groping for the door. "I'd better go out and—hang myself!" He groaned.

"Oh, my boy, my poor boy!" his mother cried after him, trying to reach him, trying to hang onto him with mother hands that never give up. But he did not look at her, he fumbled at the lock of the open French window, found it; tearing it open, he walked out over the still like a blind man. They heard the soft thud of his plunge to the ground below. Mrs. Gordon's sob came in gasps. "Oh, William, what have you done? You've driven your own boy crazy—he'll kill himself—I've got to stop him, I've got to—I—I— She was actually at the window herself now, trying to climb out.

But Nancy caught her, thrusting her back with firm young hand. "I'll go. Stay here! I'll go—I'll stop him—leave it to me!" She pushed her back gently, looking over her head at her father.

The light outside was ghastly; white squares of ground with black shadows etched where, in the day-time, there were tall shrubs and hemlocks.

Nancy stood still, too, rooted to the ground, listening, her heart in her throat. Then she heard the faint crunch of gravel in the path behind the lilac hedge. Roddy was there, of course, she might have known it! She fled lightly, making no sound in his direction and overlook him at the end of the garden; it opened there—through a broken gate—on the river meadow.

"Roddy," she called to him. "Roddy—wait!"

He stopped short and turned, the moonlight whitening his haggard young face.

"Don't come near me, Nance," the young fire-brand said, fiercely. "You best keep away from a—a dirty thief!"

She came up, panting. "Rod, you're killing Mama."

That reached him; he put his hand up with a despairing gesture and pushed the lock of hair out of his eyes.

"I wish to the Lord I'd shot myself in New York!" he said hoarsely. The anguish of his tone went to his sister's heart; they were close of an age, she was just twenty-one and they had always been together. She clung to him, shaking.

"Roddy are you sure they'll find out right away? I mean those people in New York—before you can put the money back?"

"Oh, they'll find out! They've got an accountant there—old Beaver. He never liked me, he's got his nose to the ground like a hound now—looking for the trail. I think he knows already."

"Then they might come after you—arrest you—tomorrow?" Nancy shuddered, remembering the time: "it's after twelve now—it must be today then!"

He nodded. "I don't care anymore; I've had all I want from father. I reckon I can take everything now—even handcuffs."

"He didn't mean it, he didn't mean half of it, he's mad and crazy with grief about it! You mustn't go, not this way, Roddy. Mama can't stand it, you know how she feels—you're all she cares for!"

He choked irresolute. "I won't stand for it—he's insulted the woman I love, a beautiful, good woman, whom he's never seen! I Nancy, what did I do? I was wild—I really try to strangle him!"

She nodded, pressing her lips firmly together to keep from crying. Roddy looked down strangely at his own hands, stretching them out. "Lordy, I might have killed him—I—clean forgot myself."

Nancy tugged at his sleeve. "Come back, Roddy!"

He shook his head. "I'd do some-she whispered with white lips. "I won't let you!"

He smiled at her, an odd, twisted smile. "You can't help it, Sis, I've got to go. Do you remember old Major Lomax? He was always sending his enemies to jail to crack stones!"

Roddy laughed hysterically. "I think he knows about this Rod. I met him tonight and he asked about you—in such a strange way."

"They'll all know presently. How they'll talk, Nance, all the old fogies, and the girls, too."

"Roddy, you're only twenty-three. How long will they keep you in jail?"

"It's grand larceny. I reckon that's ten years in New York."

She gave a stifled cry, clinging to him.

His face was ghastly in the moonlight, like a white mask, and his eyes twinkled nervously.

"Don't cry!" he said harshly. "I'll be old when I come out—thirty-three—and done for. They never forget a fellow with a jail sentence."

"Well, there's a way out of it, Nance, a way for the family honor, too. I—"

He choked thought. "I'd forgotten it, but I haven't—I've seen it all the time. I—I—"

He laughed bitterly. "I'm working up to it."

She lightened her arms about him frantically; she knew.

"Roddy, you can't—you won't!"

He laughed at her, his lips twitching like his eyes.

"Father meant that—he knows he means it now—he thinks I'm a coward because I didn't."

"Rod," she clung to him, "not tonight—promise me. Roddy, not tonight! Come in—you needn't be afraid, go upstairs to your own room—you need the rest; yes you do—you're crazy! Rod, I'll kill Mother, promise me, not tonight!"

Her frantic clinging hands, the love and pity in her eyes, pierced the boy's tortured soul. His lips shook, a sob choked his throat.

Nancy's arm slipped about his neck, she drew him along, she held him tight. She understood how her mother felt. It couldn't happen, it mustn't!

She had dragged him to the back door now.

"Roddy, go up to your room—I'll tell Mama you'll stay tonight," she whispered, as if she thought her father would hear it and break out again. "Don't frighten her, Rod, go to bed—she'll die if you tell her this!"

He stood irresolute, half pushed to the kitchen door. It was dark in there and silent and he could go up the back stairs. The thought of his own room and his white bed—where he had slept as a boy—suddenly leaped on him and pinned him.

A sharp little yell, a needle thrust beside the great pain he carried with him. He groaned.

"I'll stay Nance until—until I have to go," he said thickly, "for her sake—Mother's I mean."

Mrs. Gordon's relief at Roddy's return made her yield to Nancy's persuasion.

"Let him be in his room for a while, Mama. He's worn out, perhaps he'll sleep a little—if Papa doesn't break out again."

Her mother had come upstairs with her to see Roddy, and Nancy had coaxed her away from his door and into her own room. No one had thought of sleep that night and it was daylight now. The soft gray of the dawn crept in like a mist, and they heard suddenly—in their broken pauses—the twittering of the birds in the vine outside the window.

Mrs. Gordon sank in an old armchair beside her vacant bed, hiding her face in her hands. She was a mere huddled heap of misery, and Nancy saw her shoulders rise and fall with the struggle of suppressed sobs. The whole figure, the dishevelled head and the blue-veined hands told the young girl's fear.

"Don't," she whispered, patting her shoulder. "Please don't!"

Her mother raised a haggard face, blurred and puffed with weeping.

"Oh, Nancy, what shall we do? What can we do? I've lived too long!"

"Hush don't say such things."

Mrs. Gordon drew a long sigh.

In The Mail Bag

Editor,
Wainwright Star.
Dear Sir—

May I again trespass on your valuable space to place before your many readers the following suggestions.

To one who came from the "Old Country" and who indulged in more than an average share of my sporting proclivities, the absence of "sport" in the rural districts of our Province has been most marked.

The boys and girls of today are just as badly in need of organized sport as in my time, and, as a health point of view it is also very essential. Can we here in Alberta say in very truth, that our boys and girls are indulging in their national games, like the children of other countries? I think not! and there is not the slightest need for such a deplorable situation to further exist. Cannot we do something to alter the present conditions? I believe so, if a concerted effort is made among the sporting elements of the district.

Last year, the Wainwright Ball aroused quite an enthusiastic interest in the district; so for the sport benefit of "sport" in general that interest must not only be maintained but every effort made to increase it. How can we accomplish this? Firstly, by having a great game among the scholars to form a baseball team. If there should be a shortage of players in any one district, then two districts could very well amalgamate to advantage. Thirdly, from what I observed last year, "soft ball" is becoming a great game among the girls. So why not start a league for them as well? A progressive community is synonymous of the people living in it, so I am sure, are all keen to make Wainwright a live sporting community.

Our "ball team" last year, put Wainwright upon the "map," so let us go a step further this year, and put "her" right at the very top. Hoping to see this matter taken up by a more able pen than mine.

Yours sincerely,
GEO. A. BOND

wiping her eyes.

"Lie down Mama," she advised her softly, "please go lie down. If you're ill you can't help Roddy at all."

But her mother only sank lower in her chair.

"I can't rest," she said, and then petulantly: "leave me alone, Nancy. I don't want anything in the world but my boy!"

Nancy turned silently and went back into the hall, but not to her own room; but instead she went cautiously downstairs. The light was still burning there and she saw her father sitting bolt upright in his big chair beside the blackened hearth. She went softly into the room drawing nearer step by step, staring at him in silent terror. She thought he had died in his chair. He had not. He looked old and gray and broken and his mouth hung open like a dead man's.

Hints for the Household

Any well-stocked emergency shelf contains at least one package of coconut. Really it should contain two.

one box of shredded coconut which is so popular for pie fillings, custards and puddings, and an air tight tin of Southern style fresh grated coconut which is used to sprinkle over cake frostings, for desert toppings, or in salads, candies or meringue mixtures.

Many housewives have this coconut on hand but do not begin to take advantage of their possibilities. Perhaps they sprinkle coconut over a cake occasionally, and once in a while allow the children to make coconut candy. Except for this the boxes are left undisturbed even when unexpected company arrives and the housewife is at her wit's end as to what she should serve for luncheon or dinner.

These boxes of coconut upon your shelf may be used for many delicious dishes—in ice-cream, for fluffy together desserts—in a fluffy soufflé or in many dainty tea accompaniments.

Here are three recipes showing what may be to you an unusual use of this food from your emergency shelf. Try them and see how delicious they are.

Coconut Salad Delicious
2 cups cabbage, finely shredded
1 cup grated pineapple, drained
1 cup shredded coconut
1 cup mayonnaise
Dash of salt

Crisp cabbage by allowing it to stand in ice water. Drain and dry thoroughly. Toss lightly together with other ingredients. Serve on crisp lettuce. Garnish with strips of pimento and chopped chives.

Coconut Brambles
2 cups sifted cake flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup sugar
1 cup cream
2 tablespoons milk
2 teaspoons combination baking powder
4 egg whites
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon almond extract
1 cup blackberry jelly
Moist, sweetened coconut
Sift flour once, measure, add salt and one-half cup sugar, and sift again. Add cream, milk and baking powder to egg whites and beat with rotary egg beater until mixture thickens; then add flavoring and remaining sugar. Fold in flour gently. Bake in two greased pans, 8x8x2 ins. in moderate oven (325 degrees F.) 25 minutes, or until done. Cool. Put layers together with blackberry jelly. Cut into two inch squares or diamond shaped pieces, cover with frosting and sprinkle with coconut.

Makes 25:
Coconut Apple Betty
4 tart apples, pared, cored and sliced
1 cup soft bread crumbs
1 cup shredded coconut
1 cup brown sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon cinnamon
4 tablespoons butter

Arrange layer of apples in greased baking dish. Cover with bread crumbs and coconut. Sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon. Dot with butter. Repeat until all ingredients are used, topping with coconut. Bake, covered, in moderate oven, (350 degrees F.) 30 minutes. Uncover and bake 10 minutes longer, or until apples are soft. Serves 6.

NOVEL FRUIT DISHES
Do you wish to serve fruit in a novel way? Try either of the following recipes and surprise yourself as well as your guests.

Orange Blanc Manger
Serves 6 or 8
1 1/2 cups evaporated milk
4 cup sugar
one-eight teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons cornstarch
13 cups orange juice
1 teaspoon grated orange rind.

Heat milk in double boiler. Mix sugar, salt and cornstarch. Blend with part of orange juice. Add remaining juice to hot milk. Add grated rind. Cook until smooth, stirring frequently. If orange juice curdles milk, beat with whirl type beater. Pour into individual serving dishes and chill. If desired to mold increase cornstarch 1 tablespoon.

Blue Supreme
1 cup uncooked rice
1 pint boiling water
5/8 teaspoon of salt
1 pint whipping cream
1 cup orange juice
3 cup sugar
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
1 Cook rice in boiling salted water until tender. Do not overcook. Pour into a strainer and wash several times in cold water. Spread out on a cloth to drain. Sprinkle one teaspoon of the grated rind over the rice. When cold fold the rice into the whipped cream and serve with sauce made by combining the orange juice, sugar and rind, which has been stirred until sugar is dissolved.

COD LIVER OILS
The knowledge of the importance of vitamin D in the nutrition of both human beings and animals has been steadily increasing since its discovery a little over ten years ago. Since then, cod-liver oil, which is one of the richest sources of this vitamin, has been extensively used for feeding purposes, especially for poultry. More cod-liver oil is, in fact, consumed by the chickens of America than by children.
Its use is the secret of raising poultry successfully in confinement and securing high winter egg production.

GOOD AIR

Millions of cells go to make up the human body. Each cell must have oxygen or it will die. Each cell must get rid of the waste carbon dioxide which it produces or it will perish. The simplest forms of life consist of one cell; they secure the oxygen they require direct from the water in which they live. The human body requires a special arrangement for oxygen to reach all its cells. Air is taken into the lungs; the oxygen of the air is carried from the lungs, by the red corpuscles of the body, to every nook and corner of the body delivering oxygen to all cells, and picking up and carrying back to the lungs their waste product, carbon dioxide.

It is not so many years since it was believed that the ill effects of poor ventilation were due to lack of oxygen or to an excess of carbon dioxide in the air breathed into the lungs. We know now that this belief was not correct, for even poorly ventilated rooms, under ordinary conditions of living, there is plenty of oxygen for the needs of the body and never enough carbon dioxide to do any harm. The ill effects of poor ventilation are due, not to chemical changes in the air, but rather to its physical condition. What is harmful is the over-heated, still air that is loaded with moisture, because such air makes it difficult for the body to get rid of its heat, and the condition interferes with the heat regulation of the body.

To express this idea in a positive way, it means that if you are to keep your home ventilated, you must not allow it to become too warm, and that the air must be kept in gentle motion by means of an inlet (window) built on one side of a room, and an outlet opposite (window or door). Most homes and work places are kept too warm. In England, people accustomed themselves to living in rooms at about 62 degrees Fahrenheit. We believe that 68 degrees F. should be a maximum, but many people complain if the temperature of their living-rooms is not nearly 80 degrees.

One practical problem in the ventilation of the home is that it is difficult, if not impossible to have the temperature comfortable for both sexes at the same time, unless men and women come somewhat closer in their ideas as to what clothing to wear indoors. Obviously, a man with his usual clothing will be unduly warm in a room which is comfortable for a woman in her usual attire. Fresh air is desirable because it promotes health and a sense of well-being. Lack of fresh air predisposes to infections of the respiratory tract, common colds and pneumonia which are more common in winter when we live in overheated, stuffy rooms. Maintain the temperature slightly below seventy degrees Fahrenheit and keep the air in gentle motion; in this way you will enjoy the benefits of good air.

Fortified cod-liver oils are suitable for home mixing. They are also suitable for use in mechanically mixed feeds put out by feed manufacturers, and many use this type of oil in their products.

The Douglas Social Credit Plan

This series is an explanation of the Douglas Social Credit Plan. Mr. Williams, (W.) a social credit advocate, is explaining the plan to his friend, Mr. Jones (J.). The scene is Mr. Williams' home, and the conversation takes place during an evening visit.

By following this series to the conclusion the reader will clearly understand the problem which faces Canada.

"Now, Williams what's all this about the Social Credit Plan of Major Douglas?"

"Well, if we are going into the matter thoroughly—"

"That's how I want it explained."

"Then we shall have to forget Social Credit for a while and go over some of the features of our economic system."

"That's all right but tell me one thing first. Who is this Major Douglas?"

"He is a British engineer and financial expert (according to Vol. 2 of EUROPA) and here is a list of his achievements and positions. Chief Engineer and Manager, Westinghouse Co., India, 1900-1910. Deputy Chief Engineer, Pacific Railway, 1911. Engineer P. O. Railway, London, 1912. Assistant Superintendent, Royal Aircraft Factory, 1917. He has given evidence before various economic commissions and is the author of several books on Social Credit which is an original contribution to economic thought. He has independent means from his inventions. He lives in London but at the moment is visiting New Zealand and Australia where Social Credit has become a live issue in politics."

"Well, with such experience and solid practical achievements, his ideas should be worthy of investigation."

All right, go ahead. I'm really interested in economics but I don't seem to get anything practical out of the books I have read."

"And none of them agree?"

"I've noticed that they do agree on one point. At least they did agree recently. And that was they agreed one country cannot do anything by itself. Of course, there are socialists who believe that each country could improve things by individual action, and by following the socialist ideas of reconstruction and redistribution of income."

"Well Jones, that's the orthodox Socialist doctrine, but I want to go further back and approach the subject from a different angle."

"That's all right with me, provided that you don't talk over my head."

"I'm. I'll remember that. You know, that is one of the difficulties in presenting this subject. Our economic system is, in detail, a very complex mechanism. It cannot be explained in a few words but the general methods and principles can be grasped by anybody of ordinary intelligence."

But let's go over some of the reasons given for the cause of the depression. What's your idea?"

"Well, business would be better if taxes were not so high. I suppose if I were a farmer I should include the low level of commodity prices."

"Of course there are many contributing factors but one must not look at things from a too narrowly personal point of view."

Lack of fresh air predisposes to infections of the respiratory tract, common colds and pneumonia which are more common in winter when we live in overheated, stuffy rooms. Now, I'm not going to roam all over the world and cite the war, tariffs, war debts, reparations, and all those things that are advanced as causes of the depression. I hope you will agree to narrow the investigation to one critical factor."

"And what's that?"

"Finance."

"Finance? How?"

"Well, look at it this way. There are only three factors in our economic system. Three main divisions. First let us look at Production. By that, I mean the growing, making and manufacturing activity of a country. Here we can include the distribution system comprising railways, ships, etc., with their related services like telegraphs and telephones. Now if you examine the Production system as such you'll find very little wrong with it. That is to say, a satisfactory method to grow all agricultural products that can be grown here; we are equipped with factories and means for the production of useful and necessary articles; and we have the railways and the waterways to provide for distributing these things."

"Too many railways?"

"Well, at least we have no reason to believe that we are lacking in facilities in this line. Now then, do you agree that, from the practical and technical side, production as such is in a satisfactory condition?"

"Yes, I should be inclined to agree with you."

"Fine, and now let us turn to the opposite side. Consumption."

AUSTRALIAN BUTTER PLANS

What is known in Australia as the Paterson Stabilization plan has been applied in marketing Australian butter since January 1st, 1926. It had three objectives: (1) to counteract the extra costs of production due to the accepted fiscal policy of Australia; (2) to aid in the disposal of surplus butter; (3) to stabilize butter prices in Australia. This scheme is a voluntary one and is administered by a Federal Stabilization Committee which is composed of representatives of both co-operative dairy marketing interests and private manufacturers. However, plans are under way whereby State and Commonwealth legislation is proposed to authorize the setting up of a new butter marketing plan which will supplant the Paterson scheme which has not proven to be adequate under present conditions. Moreover, the dairy produce control Act has been declared to be ultra vires, or exceeding legal power, and the new legislation is designed to overcome objections to the former method of control.
